

Play Fair America, Just Play Fair

Every middle Wednesday of every month, play fair

With everyone you meet—family, friends, business associates, people you hire.

Play fair with words spoken, money exchanged and dealings all around.

Deal with your personal health...dealing a straight pathway you know is right with no bumps,

And travel with respect for all people you meet along the way

Particularly to make it a point to be kind when talking and acting.

Make it a point to listen, to not find excuses to blame or to judge other people or yourself

Since your Lord has reserved all judgment of others and you

Which is what was promised to you from your beginning. (Did you not remember?)

Your mother didn't judge you; she listened and just simply let you grow and be

And as you aged, she kept reminding you of her love and that she trusted you in all things

So you wouldn't grow up to live in fear of what might come from living your best self.

Oh sleeping, out-of-focus America, wake up and travel the straighter paths you know are there

To all being equal, able to pursue life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness the history books tell

So that we can all keep our best promises and for our brothers and sisters among us.
